Well-proportioned furniture, a warm palette and functional display shelves transformed this former drab TV room into a stylish, family-friendly space

To keep the look light Cheryl chose a frameless glass balustrade for the staircase. Interior design, couch and wall unit by Cheryl Herweg of Changing Spaces. Blankets from Weylandts. Woven bag from Baraka. On the shelves: white ceramics with motif by Vanilla Concrete from @home. Wooden figures from Weylandts. Vessels with wooden lids from Entrepo.

HOW THIS ROOM WENT FROM COLD AND STARK TO WARM AND INVITING To create a focal wall, the single window was blocked up and replaced by two narrow ones at the sides. Cheryl then installed floating shelves and joinery across the full width of the wall so that the TV doesn't dominate the room. "This also created a place for stylish displays as well as storage space for all the audiovisual equipment."

Getting the balance and scale right was a priority so Cheryl created a new layout with appropriately proportioned furniture. To provide sufficient seating for the whole family, she had an oversized L-shaped couch custom-made and upholstered in a durable fabric.

"A large rug defines the seating area and if the teenagers want to lounge on the floor, it's warm and comfortable," says Cheryl.

"NOW MY TV ROOM IS a sophisticated space that suits our needs and thanks to the large L-shaped couch, we can all enjoy movie night comfortably," says the owner. GH
